About

The Storm Chronicles are an adult album alternative and progressive rock music project. The duo was established on the vision of David Burr, who founded and developed the project as the primary vehicle for delivering his music/lyrics. Burr selected the songs for the debut album from the substantial backlog of material and demos he had developed over the course of almost 20 years. After recruiting vocalist Jody Dietz in 2011, the duo spent the next two years recording the album. The end result was Looking Backward, released in September 2013. The music and lyrics were composed by Burr, with additional writing contributions by Dietz. The album was produced, recorded and mixed by Burr.

Quotables

"...surprisingly rich and mature for an opening statement... a satisfying blend of symphonic progressive rock, ambient atmospherics and melodic pop. [T]heir obvious command of melody is a rare gift indeed." - Nick Tate, Progression Magazine (Spring 2015)

"With their dark alternative rock style, Storm Chronicles approach Pink Floyd and Fleetwood Mac, but with more expensive toys. [T]he arrangements are complex but not showy... the musical complexities and composition are clean and sharp." - Andrea Abi-Karam, The Equal Ground

"My favorite art form is polished, proggy pop, and [these] guys nailed it. Sweet. It's smooth and polished and well-produced: an audio wonder." - Ken Coffman, Seattle prog rock concert promoter and publisher, Stairway Press

"It is obvious that a great deal of care and dedication has gone into creating this self-produced release. Burr should be commended on the scale, scope and execution of his musical vision." - DPRP.net

"Whether you are a fan of Popular, Rock, Progressive or Adult Contemporary genres, this debut is all-encompassing. David's ingenious and masterful use of intricate sound and extremely well-written lyrical content is something to be envied." - C.R. Dranek, fan review
